LADY, BLINDED BUT CONSCIOUS

Said She Would Turn Blind and Fall When Nervous Spells Came On, Yet Remained Conscious.

Odessa, Fla.—"About 2 years ago," writes Mrs. J. D. Powell, of this place, "I took several bottles of Cardui as a tonic, for I was run down in health. In fact, I could hardly do anything at all; could only drag around and couldn't do my work. Life was miserable to me, and I knew I must have some relief, as I was so very weak. I would suffer with aching pains in my right side, back and shoulders. I would have such terrible nervous spells, which would come on me, and I'd fall down whenever I was standing. I would turn blind, as though I had fainted, yet kept my consciousness. My friends would rub me, my circulation was extremely poor, and the arms, hands and limbs would be cold.

My friends recommended that I try Cardui. I began using it, and soon both saw and felt a great improvement. My appetite became good. I ate so my husband teased me about it. I could rest well at night, and got so I could do all my housework in a short time. I praise Cardui to all my friends."

If you suffer from any form of womanly weakness or irregularity, try Cardui, the woman's tonic. For sale by all druggists.

Witnesses stated that the car was not traveling at an excessive rate of speed, and Booth's playmates said that he ran in front of the car, but the thirty-two foot slide of the machine shown in the road told against Bateman. He is under $2,500 bond for his appearance in the Police Court to-morrow morning, where he will be tried on a warrant charging him with homicide.

CONTINUE APPROPRIATION TO PURCHASE FOREST LANDS

Seems Certain That Congress Will Be Asked to Continue Weeks' Appalachian Reserve Bill.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., September 28.—It now seems certain that the next Congress will be asked to re-enact the Weeks' Appalachian Forest Reserve bill, and continue for another period of years the $2,000,000 annual appropriation for the purchase of forest lands in the Eastern Mountain range. It was announced to-day that the American Forestry Reservation has decided to urge a continuance of these appropriations and that many important interests along the Atlantic Coast States will go to the support of the movement.

Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, author of the original Weeks bill which created the Appalachian Forest Reserve, announced to-day also his willingness to take up the fight for a re-enactment of that part of the measure which makes the annual appropriation.

This movement is of especial interest to all the Appalachian States, including those in which the White Mountains of New England are located. Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama in the South, and Vermont and New Hampshire in the North, are within the forest reserve district established by the original bill.

This measure was enacted by Congress in 1911, when approximately $2,000,000 was provided for expenditure each year for a period of four years. This money was intended to acquire vast tracts of virgin timber lands on the Appalachian watersheds and convert it into an eastern forest reserve, similar in scope to the reserves of the Pacific West.

Since the Weeks law went into effect the agents of the government have approved for purchase a total of 1,317,231 acres of mountain timber land, at a total cost of $6,882,501. This is divided among the States as follows: Georgia, 96,977 acres, valued at $629,222; New Hampshire, 256,467 acres, valued at $1,828,667; North Carolina, 269,883 acres, valued at $1,697,892; Tennessee, 267,813 acres, valued at $1,216,613; Virginia, 294,549 acres, valued at $1,028,578; West Virginia, 198,777 acres, valued at $242,878; and South Carolina, 23,961 acres, valued at $127,537.

Becoming Styles for Stout Women

For a stout figure there is a glove-silk sweater, with striped collar and cuffs.

The difficulties formerly encountered by stout women in the selection of becoming garments have been greatly overcome, because designers and manufacturers now give special attention to fashions for women no longer sylphlike in their figure proportions. The sweater in the sketch is a good example of what has been accomplished. The pointed edge gives a slender suggestion, as do the revers and the striped collar and cuffs. Glove silk is used for the sweater. It may be selected in purple, old blue, rose and, in fact, almost any of the fashionable colors, with collar and cuffs of the sweater tone striped with white.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AID TO PREVENT FOREST FIRES

United States Department of Agriculture Offers $2,000 to Help Work in Virginia.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., September 28.—The State Forester, at the University of Virginia, has announced that he has secured an offer of $2,000 from the United States Department of Agriculture, to be spent in Virginia this fall, to help owners of timber land, or county governments, where they are making an organized effort to keep down forest fires. This help from the Government is made possible by the co-operation of the university, which has set aside a sum for forestry work in the State.

This government money will be spent to pay the salaries of patrolmen to travel through wooded sections in dry times and be on the watch for forest fires. They will be commissioned State forest wardens and given authority to enforce the fire laws. They will take charge of fighting any fire in their territory, post up warning notices, explain the law to everybody, and warn the careless.

They will be appointed only where the owners of timber land or the county authorities will meet half the expense. Thus a patrolman can be employed for four months of dry weather each year and the government will pay his salary for two of the four months. The work will be under the direction of the State Forester. Owners, or county authorities who want further particulars will be furnished them by the State Forester, Charlottesville.
